

Jeff Currier global fly fishing

“Yellowstone Autumn” A Photo Essay Grays’ Sporting Journal, November 1993

Gray’s Sporting Journal commissioned a photo essay from acclaimed sports photographer Andy Anderson in 1993. His chosen subject was a young Jeff Currier, already by then having created a reputation for himself as a fine flyfisherman of renown.

There is a smart freshness to Gray’s Sporting Journal, a freshness that is as old as time itself. There is a romance, a feeling, a catalyst about this magazine that makes even the most cynical sportsman want to go out there and do it.

Gray’s is not just about the sporting life. It captures the sporting life in a way no other magazine can, reaching deep into the reader’s soul, speaking to him of opportunities today he can pursue with genes from antiquity, genes that continue to move him into the field or stream.

Gray’s editors, columnists and contributors, its artists and photographers are not just doing a job, they are doing what they love—writing, painting and photographing the one world they all most prefer to be part of, the world of hunting and fishing.

Yes, Gray’s is unique. Some say it is the world’s unique magazine. Think about it, a literary magazine of great beauty and simplicity that most any sportsman can enjoy, but one that is saluted by the magazine world at large as the best of the best. No other sporting magazine can make that claim.

Presenting art and photography throughout the year

Yellowstone Autumn

Photography by Andy Anderson

66 · Gray's Sporting Journal

Call Toll Free 1-800-458-4030

Jeff Currier Global Fly Fishing
www.jeffcurrier.com

Jeff Currier turns into a hobo every autumn and bums around the trout waters of the far West in his battered '76 Dodge Aspen.

This year it's to Yellowstone, where big browns are eating big baits to fatten up for a winter fast. Jeff gives them what they want, wooly buggers and double bunnies, sizes 2 to 4. "Trout bumming isn't all I live for," the Jackson, Wyoming resident says, "but it comes very close."

November 1993 - 69

70 · Gray's Sporting Journal

Jeff Currier Global Fly Fishing
www.jeffcurrier.com

Cooling Game

With cool breezes, clear waters and big fish, Jeff's candor reaches out to most every troutman. Bum or not, this is where we would all like to be.

November 1993 · 71